ROLLING RODS CUSTOM CAR CLUB MAKES DONATION TO FOOD BANK OF SOUTH JERSEY

Rolling Rods, a South Jersey custom car club, presented a check for $3000 to the Food Bank of South Jersey to help fight hunger in the community.

Pennsauken, NJ December 23rd, 2008: In an effort to assist the Food Bank of South Jersey in its mission to end the hunger crisis in Camden, Burlington, Gloucester, and Salem counties, Rolling Rods, a Southern New Jersey-based custom car club, gave a generous donation of $3000.

The twenty-seven members of the non-profit Rolling Rods custom car club collected funds through registrations, auctions, and 50-50s at car shows throughout the year and unanimously decided to donate the funds to the Food Bank of South Jersey. Speaking on behalf of Rolling Rods, Tony Gorgano explained, "We saw a great need here in our own South Jersey community and wanted to help those less fortunate, particularly during this holiday season. The Food Bank of South Jersey serves the hungry in our community, and we are glad to support such a wonderful organization."

The Food Bank of South Jersey and Rolling Rods have also discussed partnering again in the future by collecting more donations and non-perishable food items at car shows in the upcoming year. "We are thrilled with Rolling Rods' generous donation and look forward to working with them in the future,” commented Val Traore, CEO of the Food Bank of South Jersey. “Their donation will certainly help us to feed many South Jersey people this holiday season.”
